Technical Data Validation

Technical data validation is the process by which the quality of technical data is confirmed for purposes of item name assignment, FSC determination, item entry control and item identification.